

□ Your home is your castle - make sure you protect it.

For most people, their home is their biggest investment, so be sure to protect it with a homeowners insurance policy.

What Does Homeowners Insurance Protect?

Each home insurance policy is different, but standard policies usually provide protection for:

- Damage to your home and other structures on your property
- Personal property such as furniture and other household items
- Fire and smoke damage
- Theft and vandalism
- Personal Liability coverage in case someone gets injured on your property
- Loss due to fire and explosion

It is vital to have the appropriate homeowner's insurance coverage on your home. You should carry enough coverage to make sure you can replace your home and its contents without too much financial hardship if disaster were to strike.